

Jenny Hart

Jenny Hart taught 4th grade at Ouray School for 24 years. During that time, she was responsible for teaching the students about the history of Colorado. Since Ouray and Colorado are the same age, were created for the same reasons (mining), and since they both treated the native people in a similar manner, she used intensive studies of Ouray's history as a vehicle for teaching the history of Colorado.

Now that she has retired from classroom teaching, she has time to educate the general public about the landmarks in our unique town.

Jenny looks forward to sharing her knowledge of our community with you

Leo Williams

Leo Williams is a Ouray High School graduate, whose great-grandfather arrived in Western Colorado in 1879. His grandfather, James H. Williams, was born in 1885 in a cabin located in the vicinity of present-day Lowery Court. This presentation consists of tales Jim Williams told about his youth.
