

Block 11: 500 - 548 Main Street, Lots 13 - 24

Standing here, one sees significant change across the street between the mid-1880's, 1902, and the present. In 1876 two wooden buildings were erected at the north end of this block. The next year a two-story frame building, known as the Bucket of Blood Saloon, stood at the opposite end. By the late nineteenth century, brick buildings were beginning to replace earlier wooden structures. The date above each building indicates when it was built. The artist has made every effort to accurately reproduce these structures from archival photographs.

Utah National Historic District

NORTH

Marker Erected 2019
Funded by a grant from

